DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 is indefinite because “the person selecting a book from said book list in response to a request from the person who wants to buy the book” is unclear. It is unclear whether “the person” refers to the same person or different people.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bookbrowse.com in view of Garrido Bookbrowse shows displaying a list of books in a recommendation home page; selecting a book from the list and displaying a portion on the display; when the person wants to purchase the book, inputting by the user predetermined items to buy the book (since it shows linking to Amazon.com to purchase and Amazon requires predetermined items including at least name and mailing address and the number of copies), sending via telecommunication line the predetermined items to a vendor (Amazon) who delivers the book. It does not show that vendor prints the book. Garrido shows the vendor printing the book on demand. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the method of Bookbrowse by printing the book on demand in order to reduce waste associated with large scale printing.

As to claim 5, it is noted that Ebookstand in view of Garrido inherently show all elements since it is necessary to provide payment for the book.

Claims 2 and 3 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bookbrowse in view of Garrido as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Hartrick et al (5,532,920).

Bookbrowse in view of Garrido show all elements except displaying the entire content of the book. Hartrick et al show providing the entire content of the book for viewing. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to further modify the method of Bookbrowse by providing the entire content in order to aid the reader in determining whether to purchase a copy of the book.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
